This event documentary, produced and directed by award-winning filmmaker Sean McGinly examines the grief, hope and emotions of 31 men who lost brothers in the attack on the Twin Towers on September 11, 2001.

The inspiration for the program came from the fact that Sean lost one of his own brothers, Mark, in the World Trade Center on that day. "Brothers" is presented in TV one hour format.

The interviews are with the brothers of a wide cross section of men who met their untimely end that day. Some were very successful stockbrokers, some firemen and some in food service at Windows on the World restaurant.

These men invite us into their homes and open their hearts.

"Brothers Lost" is a touching and ultimately life affirming look at one aspect of the aftermath of this world shattering event.
